ORGANIZATIONAL TALENT CONSULTING

Dr. Jeff Doolittle is an executive coach and human capital consultant who specializes in elevating leaders and empowering organizational excellence. With over 25 years of experience partnering with Fortune 500 executives and global organizations, Jeff has a reputation for developing high-trust relationships and leveraging people insights and the latest research to challenge the status quo and create measured growth.

Before starting Organizational Talent Consulting, Jeff held executive talent management and organizational development roles within multiple industries, such as pharma manufacturing, healthcare, retail, food service, and distribution. In these for-profit and non-profit organizations, he led a range of human capital transformation initiatives in support of strategic goals such as:

- Culture Building
- Employee Experience
- Leadership Competency Frameworks
- Organizational Design
- Performance Improvement
- Succession and Workforce Planning
- Strategic Planning

Jeff received his Doctorate in Strategic Leadership from Regent University and his MBA from Olivet Nazarene University. He is an International Coaching Federation executive coach and holds advanced certifications in leadership assessment, performance management, and strategic workforce planning. Dr. Doolittle is also the author of Life-Changing Leadership Habits: 10 Proven Principles That Will Elevate People, Profit, and Purpose.

Outside of his professional endeavors, Jeff enjoys spending time with his family hiking and scuba diving. He lives with his wife in Byron Center, MI, where he started a community service organization that has helped hundreds of people recover from life's hurts, habits, and hang-ups.
